Amendment 1

Initiative of the Federal Republic of Germany and of the French Republic with a view to adopting a Council Framework Decision on the recognition and supervision of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences

Initiative of the Federal Republic of Germany and of the French Republic with a view to adopting a Council Framework Decision on the recognition, supervision and execution of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences

Justification

The scope of the Framework Decision covers the supervision of suspensory measures and alternative sanctions and also other decisions relating to the execution of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences - an idea which is accurately summarised by the proposed wording 'supervision and execution'.

Amendment 2 Recital 5

(5) This Framework Decision respects fundamental rights and adheres to the principles recognised in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union, which are also expressed in the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, especially in Chapter VI thereof. No provision of this Framework Decision should be interpreted as prohibiting refusal to recognise a judgment and/or supervise a suspensory measure or alternative sanction if there are objective indications that the suspensory measure or alternative sanction was imposed to punish a person because of his or her sex, race, religion, ethnic origin, nationality, language, political convictions or sexual orientation or that this person might be disadvantaged for one of these reasons.

(5) This Framework Decision respects fundamental rights and adheres to the principles recognised in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union, which are also expressed in the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, especially in Chapter VI thereof. No provision of this Framework Decision should be interpreted as prohibiting refusal to recognise a judgment and/or supervise a suspensory measure or alternative sanction if there are objective indications that the suspensory measure or alternative sanction was imposed in clear and unacceptable infringement of the fundamental rights laid down in the European Union Treaties.

Amendment 3 Recital 6

(6) This Framework Decision should not prevent any Member State from applying its constitutional rules relating to

(6) This Framework Decision should not prevent any Member State from applying its constitutional rules relating to entitlement to due process, freedom of association, freedom of the press and freedom of expression in other media.

Amendment 4
Recital 8

(8) The aim of mutual recognition and supervision of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences in the executing State is to enhance the prospects of the sentenced person's being re-integrated into society, by enabling him to preserve family, linguistic, cultural and other ties, but also to improve monitoring of compliance with suspensory measures and alternative sanctions, with a view to preventing recidivism, thus paying due regard to the protection of victims.

(8) The aim of mutual recognition and supervision of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences in the executing State is to enhance the prospects of the sentenced person's being re-integrated into society, by enabling him to preserve family, linguistic, cultural and other ties, but also to improve monitoring of compliance with suspensory measures and alternative sanctions, with a view to preventing recidivism, thus paying due regard to the protection of victims and the defence of society in general.

Justification

The reference to the aim of preventing recidivism in order to pay due regard to the protection of victims omits a crucial concept - namely, the protection (or defence) of society. This is undoubtedly a concept which has a key role to play in the creation of an area of freedom, security and justice.

Amendment 5
Recital 9

(9) To ensure the effective exchange of information concerning all circumstances relevant to the suspension of sentences, Member States are encouraged to include provisions in their national legislation enabling them to assume the responsibility for the supervision of suspensory measures and alternative sanctions to be documented in their national registers.

(9) To ensure the effective exchange of information concerning all circumstances relevant to the suspension of sentences, Member States are encouraged to include provisions in their national legislation enabling them to assume the responsibility for the supervision of suspensory measures, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences to be documented in their national registers .

Justification

The inclusion of conditional sentences is in accordance with the general scope of the Framework Decision.

Amendment 6 Article 1, paragraph 1

1. The objective of this Framework Decision is, with a view to facilitating the social re-integration of sentenced persons and improving the protection of victims, to lay down the rules according to which one Member State supervises suspensory measures imposed on the basis of a judgment which was issued in another Member State, or alternative sanctions contained in such a judgment and takes all other decisions relating to the execution of that judgment, insofar as this falls within its competence.

1. This Framework Decision seeks to facilitate the social re-integration of sentenced persons, to improve the protection of victims and society and to facilitate the application of appropriate suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences in the case of offenders who are not resident in the sentencing State. With a view to achieving these objectives, this Framework Decision shall lay down rules pursuant to which the Member State in which the sentenced person has his lawful and ordinary residence shall recognise the judgments passed in another Member State and shall supervise and execute suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences.

Justification

(a) The objectives laid down in the Framework Decision must clearly support a penal policy which promotes alternatives to imprisonment (alternative sanctions, suspended sentences and conditional sentences as non-prison 'punishments'); (b) reference must be made to the rules governing recognition, since supervision presupposes mutual recognition; (c) under this Framework Decision a sentenced person must merely be granted the right to a hearing, which obviously constitutes a legal right and not a fundamental right.

Amendment 7 Article 1, paragraph 2

2. This Framework Decision shall apply only to the recognition of judgments and the transfer of responsibility for the supervision of suspensory measures and alternative sanctions and all other judicial decisions provided for in this Framework Decision. This Framework Decision shall not apply to the execution of judgments in criminal cases imposing custodial sentences or measures involving deprivation of liberty which fall within the scope of Council Framework Decision 2007/.../JHA. Recognition and execution of financial penalties and confiscation orders are governed by the legal instruments applicable between Member States, in particular Council Framework Decision 2005/214/JHA of 24 February 2005 on the application of the principle of mutual recognition to financial penalties and Council Framework Decision 2006/783/JHA of 6 October 2006 on the application of the principle of mutual recognition to confiscation orders.

sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences, and for all other subsequent decisions provided for in this Framework Decision. This Framework Decision shall not apply to the execution of judgments in criminal cases imposing custodial sentences or measures involving deprivation of liberty which fall within the scope of Council Framework Decision 2007/.../JHA. Recognition and execution of financial penalties and confiscation orders are governed by the legal instruments applicable between Member States, in particular Council Framework Decision 2005/214/JHA of 24 February 2005 on the application of the principle of mutual recognition to financial penalties and Council Framework Decision 2006/783/JHA of 6 October 2006 on the application of the principle of mutual recognition to confiscation orders.

Justification

- (a) 'Suspensory measures' are not 'sentences': as is stated in Article 2(e) they are obligations and instructions imposed in connection with a suspended sentence or a conditional sentence;
(b) the replacement of 'all other judicial decisions' by 'all other subsequent decisions' is justified on the grounds of terminological consistency (see Articles 12, 14 and 15).

Amendment 8

Article 2, point (b), point (ii)

(ii) after part of the custodial sentence or measure involving deprivation of liberty has been served (conditional release/parole);

(ii) after part of the custodial sentence or measure involving deprivation of liberty has been served (conditional release/parole decision), with the imposition of one or more suspensory measures;

Amendment 9

Article 2, point (c)

(c) 'alternative sanction' shall mean an obligation or instruction, imposed as an independent sanction, which is not a custodial sentence, a measure involving

(c) 'alternative sanction' shall mean an obligation or instruction, imposed as an autonomous sanction, which does not constitute a deprivation of liberty or deprivation of liberty or a financial penalty;

involve the payment of a sum of money;

Justification

The expression 'autonomous sanction' better conveys the nature of alternative sanctions which are 'sentences' (laid down in a judgment) which may be applied only by a judge.

Amendment 10
Article 2, point (d)

(d) 'conditional sentence' shall mean a decision by a court in which the imposition of a sentence has been conditionally suspended by imposing one or more suspensory measures;

(d) 'conditional sentence' shall mean a decision by a court in which the imposition of a sentence has been conditionally suspended, with the imposition of one or more suspensory measures;

Amendment 11
Article 2, point (g)

(g) 'executing State' shall mean the Member State in which the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions are supervised and in which all other decisions relating to the execution of the judgment are taken, insofar as it has assumed competence to do so.

(g) 'executing State' shall mean the Member State in which the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions are supervised and in which all other decisions relating to the execution of suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences are taken, following a decision pursuant to Article 7.

Amendment 12
Article 2, point (g a) (new)

(ga) 'lawful and ordinary residence' shall mean the place in which the individual concerned has established the permanent centre of his interests, which must be determined on the basis of all the relevant facts.

Justification

The concept of 'residence' is a Community concept which cannot be entrusted to the various national systems. Hence a definition of the concept (the one which features in ECJ case-law) must be included in this Framework Decision.

Amendment 13

Article 3

This Framework Decision shall not have the effect of modifying the obligation to respect fundamental rights and fundamental legal principles as enshrined in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union.

This Framework Decision shall not have the effect of modifying the duty to respect fundamental rights and fundamental legal principles as enshrined in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union and in the Member States' constitutions.

Justification

The values contained in the EU Treaties are essentially also values laid down in the Member States' constitutions. The lists of fundamental rights are open ones.

Amendment 14

Article 4, paragraph 1

1. Each Member State shall inform the General Secretariat of the Council which judicial authority or authorities, under its national legislation, are competent to act according to this Framework Decision in the situation where that Member State is the issuing State or the executing State.

1. Each Member State shall inform the General Secretariat of the Council which authority or authorities, under its national legislation, are competent to act according to this Framework Decision in the situation where that Member State is the issuing State or the executing State. The list of competent authorities shall be published in the Official Journal of the European Union.

Justification

The Framework Decision contains provisions concerning the role of other authorities in addition to judicial ones or ones which perform the tasks of a judicial authority (for example: police authorities or administrative bodies which have no judicial-authority tasks). This justifies replacing 'judicial authorities' with 'competent authorities' in Article 4 but not necessarily throughout the Framework Decision (see Justification to Articles 6(1) and 7(1)). The nature of the authorities involved is determined by the section of the Framework Decision which is being invoked.

Amendment 15
Article 5, paragraph 1

1. A judgment that contains one or more of the following suspensory measures or alternative sanctions may be transferred to another Member State, in which the sentenced person is lawfully and ordinarily resident, for the purpose of recognition and supervision of those measures and sanctions:

1. A judgment or decision for conditional release that contains one or more of the following suspensory measures or obligations or instructions may be transferred to another Member State, in which the sentenced person is lawfully and ordinarily resident, for the purpose of recognition and supervision of those measures or obligations or instructions. The certificate referred to in Article 6 may for supervision purposes state one or more of the suspensory measures or of the obligations or instructions contained in a judgment.

Justification

This is a necessary clarification in cases where the issuing State does not wish to request supervision of all the measures stated in the judgment.

Amendment 16
Article 5, paragraph 1, point (a)

(a) an obligation for the sentenced person to inform the competent authority in the executing State of any change of residence;

(a) an obligation for the sentenced person to inform the competent authority in the executing State of any change of residence or place of work or study;

Amendment 17
Article 5, paragraph 1, point (b)

(b) an obligation not to leave or enter certain localities in the issuing or executing State without permission, and other orders relating to life-style, residence, education and training, professional activity or leisure activities;

(b) an obligation not to enter certain localities in the issuing or executing State without permission, and other orders relating to life-style, residence, education and training, professional activity or leisure activities;

Amendment 18
Article 5, paragraph 1, point (e)

(e) an obligation to compensate for the prejudice caused by the offence;

(e) an obligation to compensate for the prejudice caused by the offence and to notify the executing State's competent authority that this obligation has been complied with;

Amendment 19
Article 5, paragraph 1a (new)

1a. For the purposes of this Framework Decision, the person standing trial must be heard before the judgment or the decision for conditional release is transmitted.

Justification

Transfer of a sentenced person must not be dependent upon his consent. Under the Framework Decision, only the right to a hearing must be conferred on a sentenced person - such a right obviously being a legal one and not a fundamental one. The transfer decision will be considered by a judge in the light of the purposes of the Framework Decision.

Amendment 20
Article 5, paragraph 3

3. Apart from the measures and sanctions referred to in paragraph 1, the certificate referred to in Article 6 shall include only such measures or sanctions as notified by the executing State concerned in accordance with paragraph 2.

3. Apart from the measures and sanctions referred to in paragraph 1, the certificate referred to in Article 6 shall include only such suspensory measures or obligations or instructions as notified by the executing State concerned in accordance with paragraph 2.

Amendment 21
Article 6, paragraph 1

1. The judgment or a certified copy of it, together with a certificate, the standard form for which is set out in Annex I, shall be forwarded by the competent judicial authority in the issuing State directly to the competent judicial authority in the executing State by any means which leaves

1. The certificate, the standard form for which is set out in Annex I, together with the judgment (or a certified copy thereof) and possibly the decision for conditional release, shall be forwarded by the competent judicial authority in the issuing State directly to the competent judicial a written record under conditions allowing the executing State to establish their authenticity. The original of the judgment, or a certified copy of it, and the original of the certificate, shall be sent to the executing State if it so requires. All official communications shall also be made directly between the said competent judicial authorities.

authority in the executing State by any means which leaves a written record under conditions allowing the executing State to establish their authenticity. The original of the judgment, or a certified copy of it, and the original of the certificate, shall be sent to the executing State if it so requires. All official communications shall also be made directly between the said competent judicial authorities.

Justification

The expression 'judicial authority' is retained here, since what is involved is the forwarding of the 'judgment' (which is always pronounced by a judge) and of the 'conditional-release decision' (which may or may not be taken by a judge). Since there is no 'organic' definition of 'competent judicial authority', a 'functional' definition must be adopted, which means accepting that the competent judicial authority may be the judge, a public ministry or an administration which performs the tasks of a competent judicial authority.

Amendment 22 Article 6, paragraph 3

3. The competent judicial authority in the issuing State shall forward the judgment together with the certificate only to one executing State at any one time.

3. The competent judicial authority in the issuing State shall forward the judgment together with the certificate (and any decision for conditional release) only to one executing State at any one time.

Amendment 23 Article 6, paragraph 5

5. When a judicial authority in the executing State which receives a judgment together with a certificate has no competence to recognise it, it shall, ex officio, forward the judgment together with the certificate to the competent judicial authority. That competent judicial authority in the executing State shall immediately inform the competent judicial authority in the issuing State, by any means which leaves a written record, that the judgment and the certificate have been forwarded to

Amendment 24
Article 7, paragraph 1

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State shall recognise the judgment forwarded in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 6 and immediately take all necessary measures for the supervision of the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions, unless it decides to invoke one of the grounds for refusing to recognise and take over supervision of the judgment referred to in Article 9.

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State shall recognise the judgment forwarded in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 6 and immediately take all necessary measures for the supervision of the suspensory measures and the obligations and instructions which constitute the alternative sanction, unless it decides to invoke one of the grounds for refusing to recognise and supervise the judgment referred to in Article 9.

Justification

The expression 'judicial authority' is retained here, since the Member States' 'judicial authorities' must communicate with one another. Thereafter (pursuant to Article 4) each Member State informs the General Secretariat of the Council which judicial authorities are – under its national legislation – responsible for the supervision and execution of sentences (authorities which, once again, may not necessarily be judicial authorities). As is apparent, the suitability of this expression in the text of the Framework Decision must be assessed in each individual case (see Justification to Articles 4(1) and 6(1)).

Amendment 25
Article 7, paragraph 2

2. If the nature or duration of the suspensory measures or alternative sanctions are incompatible with the statutory provisions of the executing State, the competent judicial authority in that State may adapt them in line with the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions which are provided for, under the law of the executing State, for offences of the same kind. The adapted suspensory measure or alternative sanction shall correspond as far as possible to that

2. If the duration of the suspensory measures or alternative sanctions is incompatible with the statutory provisions of the executing State, the competent judicial authority in that State may adapt them in line with the suspensory measures and the obligations and instructions that constitute the existing alternative sanctions which are provided for, under the law of the executing State, for similar offences. The adapted suspensory measure or alternative sanction shall correspond as far as possible to that imposed in the issuing imposed in the issuing State.

State.

Justification

The incompatibility of measures or sanctions can be assessed only as regards their duration and not as regards their nature. Only this makes sense in terms of penal legality – and only thus does Article 7(3) make sense. In practice it would be very difficult to assess the severity of the measures or sanctions adapted if they were of differing natures.

Amendment 26

Article 7, paragraph 3 a (new)

3a. Should suspensory measures or alternative sanctions be adapted pursuant to paragraph 2 above, the competent judicial authority in the executing State shall without delay inform the competent judicial authority in the issuing State of that decision. Following receipt of such information the competent judicial authority in the issuing State may decide to withdraw the certificate and the judgment (and also, if appropriate, the decision for conditional release). In these circumstances, the person sentenced shall be guaranteed the right to a hearing.

Justification

As with the adoption of the decision of transfer, it is necessary to recognise the right of the person sentenced to a hearing. Equally, in the opposite case (withdrawal of the decision), the same right needs to be guaranteed.

Amendment 27

Article 9, paragraph 1

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State may refuse to recognise the judgment and to assume responsibility for supervising suspensory measures and alternative sanctions if:

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State may refuse to recognise the judgment (or, if appropriate, the decision for conditional release) and to assume responsibility for supervising suspensory measures and alternative sanctions if:

Amendment 28
Article 9, paragraph 1, point (a)

(a) the certificate referred to in Article 6 is incomplete or obviously does not correspond to the judgment and is not completed or corrected within a reasonable period set by the competent judicial authority in the executing State;

(a) the certificate referred to in Article 6 is incomplete or obviously does not correspond to the judgment or the decision for conditional release and is not completed or corrected within a reasonable period set by the competent judicial authority in the executing State;

Amendment 29
Article 9, paragraph 1, point (b)

(b) the criteria laid down in Article 5 are not met;

(b) the criteria laid down in Article 5 are not met (including – although not restricted to – the requirement for lawful and ordinary residence in the executing State);

Justification

The executing State must be the State 'on whose territory the person sentenced has his lawful and ordinary residence' and hence residence should also be a 'criterion' to be taken into account by the 'requested' State for refusing to recognise and to assume responsibility for supervision.

Amendment 30
Article 9, paragraph 1, point (e)

(e) prosecution, or the execution of a sentence, is already statute-barred under the law of the executing State and relates to an act which falls within the competence of the executing State under its national law;

(e) the sentence is already statute-barred under the law of the executing State;

Justification

(a) This deletes the reference to the barring of prosecution, since what is involved is not so much prosecution as sentences which have already been applied; (b) strictly speaking, one should refer to 'barring the sentence' and not to barring the execution of a sentence, since if a sentence is to be executed it does not lapse (or, rather, the execution thereof does not lapse) if the time-limit for barring the sentence has been reached.

Amendment 31
Article 9, paragraph 1, point (i)

(i) the judgment provides for medical/therapeutic treatment which, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 7(2), the executing State is unable to supervise in view of its legal or healthcare system; or

(i) the judgment or possibly the decision for conditional release provides for medical/therapeutic treatment which, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 7(2), the executing State is unable to supervise in view of its healthcare system; or

Justification

It makes no sense to mention the legal system as a reason for non-execution: pursuant to Article 11, '...supervision ...shall be governed by the law of the executing State'. Hence the meaning of Article 11 should be (unless the practical effects which the adoption of this Framework Decision is intended to achieve – i.e. the effective execution of judgments of this kind, with a view to achieving certain objectives – are to be nullified) that the executing State (which is obliged and which has undertaken to supervise the measures and sanctions provided for in Article 5(1) and (2)) is required to adopt internal laws for the purpose of performing such supervision if such laws are not already in place.

Amendment 32
Article 9, paragraph 1, point (j)

(j) in the case referred to in Article 13(1), no agreement can be reached on adaptation of suspensory measures or alternative sanctions. deleted

Justification

Deletion of this subparagraph is linked to the deletion of Article 13, which would result in an excessive amount of consultation and make the Framework Decision highly ineffective.

Amendment 33
Article 9, paragraph 1, point (j a) (new)

(ja) the certificate or judgment includes measures which are not listed or accepted under Article 5(1) and (2) of this Framework Decision.

Amendment 34

Article 9, paragraph 2

2. Before the competent judicial authority in the executing State decides, in the cases referred to in paragraph 1, to refuse to recognise the judgment and to assume responsibility for supervising suspensory measures and alternative sanctions, it shall communicate, by appropriate means, with the competent judicial authority in the issuing State and, as necessary, request the latter immediately to supply all additional information required.

2. Before the competent judicial authority in the executing State decides, in the cases referred to in paragraph 1 (a), (b), (c), (h) and (i), not to recognise the judgment (or if appropriate the decision for conditional release) and to assume responsibility for supervising suspensory measures and alternative sanctions, it shall communicate, by appropriate means, with the competent judicial authority in the issuing State and, as necessary, request the latter immediately to supply all additional information required.

Amendment 35

Article 10, paragraph 1

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State shall decide, within 10 days after receipt of the judgment and the certificate, whether to recognise the judgment and assume responsibility for supervising the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions. It shall immediately inform the competent judicial authority in the issuing State, by any means which leaves a written record, of its decision. Reasons must be given for refusing to recognise the judgment and for refusing to assume responsibility for supervision.

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State shall decide, within 30 days after receipt of the judgment and the certificate, whether to recognise the judgment and assume responsibility for supervising the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions. It shall immediately inform the competent judicial authority in the issuing State, by any means which leaves a written record, of its decision. Reasons must be given for refusing to recognise the judgment and for refusing to assume responsibility for supervision.

Justification

This is a reasonable time-limit.

Amendment 36

Article 10, paragraph 2

2. If it is not possible, in a specific case, for the competent judicial authority in the executing State to comply with the time-limit laid down in paragraph 1, it shall immediately inform the competent judicial authority in the issuing State, by any means

2. If it is not possible, in an exceptional case, for the competent judicial authority in the executing State to comply with the time-limit laid down in paragraph 1, it shall immediately inform the competent judicial authority in the issuing State, by any means

of its choosing, giving reasons for the delay and indicating how long it expects to take to issue a final decision.

Justification

Consistency with Article 10 of the Framework Decision 'on the application of the principle of mutual recognition to judgments in criminal matters imposing custodial sentences or other measures involving deprivation of liberty for the purpose of their enforcement in the European Union'. Lengthening the time-limit to 30 days means that such cases will always be regarded as exceptional.

Amendment 37 Article 11

The supervision of suspensory measures and alternative sanctions shall be governed by the law of the executing State.

The supervision of suspensory measures and of the obligations and instructions which constitute alternative sanctions shall be governed by the law of the executing State.

Amendment 38 Article 12, paragraph 1

1. The competent judicial authority in the executing State shall have jurisdiction to take all subsequent decisions relating to the suspended sentence, alternative sanction or conditional sentence, such as the modification of suspensory measures, the revocation of suspension, sentencing in the case of a conditional sentence, or remission. The law of the executing State shall apply to the aforementioned decisions and to all subsequent consequences of the judgment.

1. The competent authority in the executing State shall have jurisdiction to take all subsequent decisions relating to the suspended sentence, alternative sanction, conditional sentence or conditional release, such as the modification of suspensory measures, the revocation of suspension, sentencing in the case of a conditional sentence or the revocation thereof, or lapse. The law of the executing State shall apply to the aforementioned decisions and to all subsequent consequences of the judgment.

Justification

(a) In this article the reference should be solely to 'competent authority': in certain Member States the 'subsequent decisions' mentioned here may not be taken by 'judicial authorities' (for example, decisions relating to modifications to suspensory measures); (b) sentencing in the case of a conditional sentence requires prior revocation of the conditional sentence; (c) the word 'lapse' is preferable to the word 'remission' on the grounds of linguistic uniformity (see Article 14(1)(d)).

Amendment 39
Article 12, paragraph 2

2. The competent judicial authority in the issuing State may reserve competence to take all subsequent decisions relating to conditional sentences. In this case the law of the issuing State shall apply to all subsequent consequences of the judgment.

2. The competent authority in the issuing State may reserve competence to take all subsequent decisions relating to conditional sentences. In this case the law of the issuing State shall apply to all the above-mentioned decisions and to all subsequent consequences of the judgment.

Justification

The law-enforcing issuing or executing State enforces its own law.

Amendment 40
Article 12, paragraph 3

3. When transposing this Framework Decision, any Member State may indicate that as executing State it may, in individual cases, refuse to assume responsibility provided for in paragraph 1. In these cases, the decision shall be taken and notification effected in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 10. This shall not affect the obligation laid down in Article 7(1).

3. When adopting this Framework Decision or subsequently at the time of transposition and by means of a statement lodged with the General Secretariat of the Council, each Member State may indicate that, as executing State and in the categories of cases to be specified by that Member State, it refuses to assume responsibility provided for in paragraph 1. In these cases, the decision shall be taken (with reasons given) and notification effected in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 10. This shall not affect the obligation laid down in Article 7(1). That statement by a Member State may be withdrawn at any time. The statements or the withdrawal thereof shall be published in the Official Journal of the European Union.

Justification

The principle is that refusal is the exception - otherwise the Framework Decision would become less effective and hence less meaningful.

Amendment 41
Article 13

Article 13

deleted

Consultations between the competent judicial authorities

1. If the competent judicial authority in the executing State intends to make adaptations as provided for in Article 7(2) and (3), it shall first consult the competent judicial authority in the issuing State on the adapted suspensory measures or alternative sanction.

2. When forwarding the judgment and the certificate as provided for in Article 6, the competent judicial authority in the issuing State may waive the consultations referred to in paragraph 1. In that case, any adaptations made by the competent judicial authority in the executing State in accordance with Article 7(2) and (3) shall subsequently be notified to the competent judicial authority of the issuing State.

Justification

Article 13 is deleted in order to prevent an excessive amount of consultation which would undermine the effectiveness of the Framework Decision. It should, however, be noted that in accordance with the new paragraph 4 added to paragraph 7, the certificate may be withdrawn by the issuing State if the adaptation referred to in Article 7 is unacceptable.

Amendment 67
Article 16, paragraph 1 a (new)

Only the issuing State can take a decision regarding requests for a review of judgments involving suspended sentences, conditional sentences and alternative sanctions, the supervision and execution of which are covered by this Framework Decision.

Amendment 68
Article 17

If the sentenced person leaves the executing State and establishes his or her

If the sentenced person leaves the executing State or ceases to have a lawful lawful and ordinary residence in another Member State, the competent judicial authority of the executing State shall transfer jurisdiction in respect of the supervision of the suspensory measures and alternative sanctions and in respect of all further decisions relating to the execution of the judgment to the competent judicial authority of the issuing State.

and ordinary residence in the executing State, the competent judicial authority of the executing State shall transfer jurisdiction in respect of the supervision of the suspensory measures and the obligations or instructions which constitute alternative sanctions and in respect of all further decisions relating to the execution of the judgment (or if appropriate the decision for conditional release) to the competent judicial authority of the issuing State.

Justification

The executing State is no longer able to exercise supervision over the sentenced person, hence responsibility for supervision passes to the issuing State. Such a transfer of responsibility should be regarded as an 'obligation' and not as a 'power'.

Amendment 69 Article 17, paragraph 1 a (new)

1a. The transfer of jurisdiction referred to in paragraph 1 must also take place if the issuing State issues a request to that effect to the competent judicial authority of the executing State on the grounds that further criminal proceedings against the person are taking place in the issuing State.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

1. It is now quite some time since the European Union ceased to be merely a common economic area and began to adopt shared values as well. It is progressing towards its aim of establishing a political community pursuing the illuminist ideal of the sublime dignity of man and it is gradually instituting political power-sharing amongst its Member States, cooperation amongst institutions and a legal system which is both cosmopolitan and people-centred.

What is genuinely fascinating about the European Union is this journey towards the individual and towards a legal system applicable to all peoples and all generations.

Within the area of freedom, security and justice, the free movement of persons is matched by the movement of judicial decisions through mutual recognition and also through police and judicial cooperation. The various fields of law (including criminal law) are increasingly being released from 'feudalisation' within the individual Member States in order to secure the common ideal of justice for all. The European Union is an extraordinary example of a political organisation which has learned to converge the particular interests of each Member State with the moral aims of an embryonic legal system.

Criminal law is included in this gradual move towards mutual cooperation amongst the EU Member States. The purpose of the Framework Decision under consideration here is to facilitate a sentenced person's reintegration into society, to provide better protection for victims and society as a whole and to facilitate the enforcement of appropriate suspended sentences, alternative sanctions and conditional sentences in the case of offenders who are not resident in the State in which they were sentenced. The value of this initiative is above all that it encourages the Member States' judicial authorities to incorporate sanctions other than custodial sentences into their criminal law. We are all aware that if the political agenda does not offer conditions for the establishment of alternative sanctions, judges tend not to apply them. Facilitating alternative sanctions serves to promote humanitarian attitudes to criminal law and to sentences and hence promotes European law in general. It resolves the fallacy of setting a sentenced person's right to social reintegration against society's interest in reintegrating him. The truth of the matter is that there is no opposition here. The status of sentenced persons is even a barometer enabling the degree of civilisation and the calibre of the justice system of any political community to be assessed. Promoting the application of suspensory measures as an alternative to a custodial sentence is an objective to be achieved as a matter of urgency in the field of EU criminal law. European politics must strive to establish a link between criminal law and a culture of rights in all its dimensions: as regards the devising and execution of sentences and the relationship between sentenced persons and society in general.

2. At times the effectiveness of mutual recognition is restricted by the fact that the Member States' criminal laws are still in the early stages of harmonisation. An example of this is provided by the Framework Decision under consideration. The procedure for cooperation in the supervision and execution of alternative sanctions would be much simpler and more efficient (and also much less problematic) if the Member States adopted the same types of sentence or had similar judicial structures or even substantive and procedural criminal laws with a greater degree of equivalence [see the problem of adapting the 'different measures' or of the 'instability of jurisdictions' when a suspended sentence is revoked or a sentence is imposed in the case of a conditional sentence].

The need for the Member States' substantive criminal laws to be progressively harmonised is a background condition for the completion of the European area of freedom, security and justice. Furthermore, increasing harmonisation of the Member States' criminal laws can be advocated on the basis of the common values referred to in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union: after all, those values are to a large extent underpinned by laws which punish criminal behaviour.

3. In the meantime the procedural rules laid down in the Framework Decision will have to be organised on the basis of the current state of affairs. Hence it has been decided that for reasons of legality, clarity and legal certainty, the distribution of powers and responsibilities between the issuing State and the executing State will be governed by the rule that the State which exercises a given power or responsibility will apply its own laws thereto (see Article 12(2)).

Along with this arrangement a decision has been taken to stipulate the principle of the hearing of defendants as a principle which must be applied in cases involving the revocation of a suspended sentence or the imposition of a conditional sentence [see Article 14(2)a (new)]. Similarly, the reference to the Member States' constitutions in conjunction with a reference to the Treaty values (see Article 3) has been deemed useful. Fundamental rights set a standard on the basis of which the inventories of EU and Member-State fundamental rights are to be read as open ones which complement each other.

In this connection a contribution to the question of consent in initiating the transfer of responsibility for supervision and execution has also been sought (see Article 5(1)a). The transfer option is not a sentenced person's fundamental right [precisely because that person already has 'sentenced' status and the clarification of timing and role is also a question of judicial legitimacy]. Hence the transfer is not subject to consent. What should exist here is decisive judicial consideration geared to the purposes of the Framework Decision and the granting to the sentenced person of the right to be heard, since a hearing has an essential role to play in such consideration.

It is, furthermore, in the interests of such effectiveness that it is being proposed here that a 'rule on the exceptional nature of refusal' by the executing State be enshrined (see Article 12(3)).

A decision has also been taken to include a definition of 'lawful and ordinary residence' which corresponds to the definition found in European Court of Justice case-law [see Article 2(ga) (new)].

As has already been said, the opinion provides comprehensive clarification of the definition/distribution of powers and responsibilities between the issuing State and the executing State. Clarity underpins the legal certainty and the legality which are essential to criminal law. For this reason the adaptation of measures by the executing State as regards the nature thereof (see Article 7(2)) has been rejected. Only adaptation as regards duration and possibly the form of execution is compatible with the typification required by the principle of strict legality in criminal law.

4. Lastly, it should be pointed out that the Franco-German initiative relating to this Framework Decision sends out a very positive signal within the European area of freedom, security and justice. It shows that the European dimension is now understood in the light of the idea of intensive EU political and legal integration. It also shows how the humanisation of criminal law infuses the European legal system: a legal system based on the irreducible value of humanity, in which each individual - even a sentenced one - is regarded as an end in himself, as a unique and unrepeatable being.
